

A poem Gili wrote on her computer to herself. I found it after her death.

TO MY DEAR PARENTS, HENYA and NORM KAGAN:

Parents are people who the world does indeed respect.
Parents are people who the world does not perfect.
Parents are people who children love so much.
Parents are people who know a whole much.
Parents are people who are sweet and kind.
Parents are people who really don't mind.
Parents are people who will let you grow old.
Parents are people who never grow old.
Parents are special in many ways,
and we should do what ever he or she says.
And that's my poem about parents.
